1 pale pink

A little less peppy than its pastel counterpart, this soft, dusty hue is easy to work into your warm-weather wardrobe, from dresses to bags to shoes. “Wear it like you would any neutral,” says Cinq à Sept founder Jane Siskin, who created Allison Williams’s frilly top. “It’s the perfect shade to complement every skin tone.”

2 floral bags

Floral prints always pop up on clothing in the spring, but this season they've migrated to the bag department in a bold way. "The trend is: more is more!" says Kate Spade New York designer Deborah Lloyd, who created Camilla Belle's top-handle. "It's a standout piece, but it's also versatile," she adds.

3 bold ruffles

"More than ever, women are celebrating their strength and femininity, and this trend is an extension of that," stylist Wayman Bannerman, who styles Pitch's Kylie Bunbury along with Micah McDonald, says of the sculptural accent. Adds McDonald: "Don't let the style overpower you—define your waistline so the look is figure-flattering."

modern mules

Slip-ons are everywhere right now, from sturdy stacked heels to chic flats. "They're the perfect transitional shoe," says Nicholas Kirkwood, who designed Gigi Hadid's pointy style. He suggests picking a pair with an architectural detail that can take you from day to night.

sporty stripes

Eye-popping bands of color on easy-to-wear shapes and sleek accessories are all the hype because “they provide a new perspective on a classic,” says Rachel Roy, who designed Garcelle Beauvais’s off-the-shoulder dress. Mix your stripes with equally graphic add-ons for a perfect ensemble.
